ASHLEY ALVARADO
CORONADO JAG

People are trying to understand me but no one seems to understand me, We are speaking different languages in which they can't comprehend I feel trapped by these walls I just wish to be somewhere over the rainbow My life is spiraling, everything is spinning I am in the eye of the storm Suddenly, everything is in color Doors are opening, but I don't know if I'm ready to venture out and down the yellow brick road I know I need to have courage I need to show my heart I need to think hard, So that I may pass through these treacherous waters There are helping and warm hands now, But they say that they cannot do it for me I must do it and face the beast straight in the eyes I conquered the beast I can go home now All I really needed was the courage, the heart, the mindset and my JAG family to see me through
